

Privacy Policy

IAM MFG., LLC (“IAM”) provides goods and services to you subject to the following Privacy Policy. If you visit our web site or use a good or service of IAM, you accept the Privacy Policy provisions. Please read them carefully.

PRIVACY

Use of our web site and services, purchase of our products and warranty registrations may require personal user information to be stored on our servers, and users may request data by submitting their e-mail. When you send us an e-mail, we will collect your e-mail address. IAM does not resell any information that is collected to outside parties. IAM makes every effort to ensure the security of your information while the information is stored with IAM. In the event you move from our web site to a third party’s web site, it is your responsibility to ascertain the security and privacy policies of any such third party, and IAM cannot speak for those companies on privacy and security issues. If you would like to know more or have a question, please e-mail marketing@iammanufacturing.com. We reserve the right to alter our Privacy Policy as necessary and/or required, and any alterations to this Privacy Policy will be posted on our Web site in a timely manner.

What information does IAM collect?

IAM collects two kinds of information: anonymous and personally identifiable. Anonymous information is not associated with specific individuals. For instance, IAM may know how many unique browsers view this Privacy Policy today, but we don't know the names or addresses of the individuals at that browser. Personally identifiable information reveals who you are and/or how you can be contacted. Personally identifiable information is stored by IAM such period of time as we deem necessary, and it may be indefinitely.

The information we learn from users helps us personalize and continually improve your experience with IAM. Here are the types of information we gather.

- Information You Give Us:

We receive and store any information you enter on our web site or give us in any other way. You can choose not to provide certain information, but then you might not be able to take advantage of many of our features. We use the information that you provide for such purposes as responding to your requests, improving our contacts, and communicating with you.

- Automatic Information:

We receive and store certain types of information whenever you interact with us. For example, like many Web sites, we use "cookies," and we obtain certain types of information when your Web browser accesses IAM’s web site.

- Information from Other Sources:

We also might receive information about you from other sources and add it to our information; however, IAM does not resell this information.

What are cookies, and how does IAM use them?

IAM collects anonymous information through cookies. A cookie is a small piece of data containing a unique identification number that is sent to your browser from a web server, and is stored on your computer's hard drive. The unique ID number identifies your browser to IAM's computers whenever you use a IAM service. Cookies do not enable anyone to access personally identifiable information that you have not already given them.

Cookies are part of the technology implemented by your browser. Most browsers are initially set up to accept cookies. You can reset your browser to either notify you when you have received a cookie, or to refuse them all together. To find out more about cookies, to accept or disable cookies, visit the websites of your browser provider. Cookies allow you to take full advantage of some of IAM's most important features, and we recommend that you leave them turned on.

IAM uses both static and temporary cookies. Static cookies stay with your browser, whereas temporary cookies go away after you close your browser. IAM uses static cookies in order to recognize you between visits. IAM uses temporary cookies to store information about your current visit to the site. That information goes away when you close your browser or shut down your computer. If you choose to not accept cookies, there may be features of our web site that you may not be able to use.

What information does IAM log?

When you surf the Internet, your browser automatically transmits information to the web sites you visit, including IAM's. Such information includes referral data (URL of the web page you were on before coming to IAM), IP address and your browser version. IAM collects this information to help improve services. All the information that is automatically submitted by your browser is considered anonymous.

What is IAM's information retention policy?

To preserve the integrity of our databases, standard procedure calls for us to retain information for an indefinite length of time. If required by law, as is the case to comply with the Children's Online Privacy Protection Act (COPPA), we will nullify (scramble so that it is unrecognizable) customer information. We will also respond to written customer requests to nullify personally identifiable information. If you wish to make such a request, which requires that we verify your identity, or if you have any questions regarding this policy, contact IAM's Marketing Department at marketing@iammanufacturing.com, or you can contact us at:

With whom does IAM share information?

When you submit information to IAM, it is generally collected, processed and maintained solely by us; however, IAM may share, but not resell, such information as described below:

- Suppliers or Affiliated Businesses We Do Not Control:
We work closely with suppliers and affiliated businesses. You can tell when a third party is involved in your transactions, and we share customer information related to those transactions with that third party.
- Third-Party Service Providers:
We employ other companies and individuals to perform functions on our behalf. Examples include removing repetitive information from customer lists, analyzing data, providing marketing assistance, providing search results and links (including paid listings and links). They have access to personal information needed to perform their functions, but may not use it for other purposes.
- Promotional Offers:
Sometimes we send offers to selected groups of IAM customers on behalf of other businesses. When we do this, we do not give that business your name and address. If you do not want to receive such offers, please adjust your customer preferences.
- Business Transfers:
We might sell or buy certain products or business units. In such transactions, customer information generally is one of the transferred business assets but remains subject to the promises made in any pre-existing Privacy Policy (unless, of course, the customer consents otherwise). Also, in the unlikely event that IAM, or substantially all of its assets are acquired, customer information will, of course, be one of the transferred assets.
- Protection of IAM and Others:
We release Account and other personal information when we believe release is appropriate to comply with the law; enforce or apply our Terms of Use and other agreements; or protect the rights, property, or safety of IAM, our users, or others. This includes exchanging information with other companies and organizations for fraud protection and credit risk reduction. Obviously, however, this does not include selling, renting, sharing, or otherwise disclosing personally identifiable information from customers for commercial purposes in violation of the commitments set forth in this Privacy Policy.
- With Your Consent:
Other than as set out above, you will receive notice when information about you might go to third parties, and you will have an opportunity to choose not to share the information.

How Secure Is Information About Me?

We work to protect the security of your information during transmission by using Secure Sockets Layer (SSL) software, which encrypts information you input.

We reveal only the last four digits of your credit card numbers when confirming an order. Of course, we transmit the entire credit card number to the appropriate credit card company during order processing.

It is important for you to protect against unauthorized access to your password and to your computer. Be sure to completely sign off when you are finished using a shared computer.

Links to Third Party Web Sites and Services

From time to time, IAM's web site may include links to third party web sites and services. We do not provide any personally identifiable information to these third-party websites. The linked web sites and services are not under the control of IAM and IAM is not responsible for the contents, services, or availability of any linked web site or service or any further link contained in a linked third party web site or service. IAM provides these links as a convenience to you, and the inclusion of any link does not imply that IAM is specifically authorized to provide such link, nor is it an endorsement by IAM of any third party, their web site, service or their products or services.

These third-party websites sometimes use technology to send (or "serve") the advertisements that appear on our website directly to your browser. They automatically receive your IP address when this happens. They may also use cookies, JavaScript, web beacons, and other technologies to measure the effectiveness of their ads and to personalize advertising content. We do not have access to or control over cookies or other features that they may use, and the information practices of these advertisers and third-party websites are not covered by this Privacy Policy. Please contact them directly for more information about their privacy practices. In addition, the Networking Advertising Initiative offers useful information about Internet advertising companies (also called "ad networks" or "network advertisers"), including information about how to opt-out of their information collection.

What Choices Do You Have?

- As discussed above, you can always choose not to provide information, even though it might be needed to make a purchase or to take advantage of certain IAM services.
- You can add or update certain information. When you update information, we usually keep a copy of the prior version for our records.
- If you do not want to receive e-mail or other mail from us, please adjust your customer preferences. If you do not want to receive Terms of Use and other legal notices from us, such as this Privacy Policy, those notices will still govern your use of IAM's web site, and it is your responsibility to review them for changes.)
- The Help portion of the toolbar on most browsers will tell you how to prevent your browser from accepting new cookies, how to have the browser notify you when you receive a new cookie, or how to disable cookies altogether. Additionally, you can disable or delete similar data used by browser add-ons, such as Flash cookies, by changing the add-on's settings or visiting the web site of its manufacturer. However, cookies allow you to take full advantage of some of IAM 's useful features, and we recommend that you leave them turned on.
- There are products that offer anonymous browsing. In addition, the Federal Trade Commission provides useful information about online privacy on its own web site.
